TEST FOR FISHHOOKS OFTEN COMES LATE

A party in waters down East a piece has going bluefishing. The boy had rought the fishing tackle up from the abin and now the skipper was sitting a deck, with a big file, illing the hooks. "Used to be a man go bluefishing with te," the skipper said, "that always filed is own hook. Carried a file in his ocket for just that. Always had that le with him and always filed his own books."

hooks. "And when he'd got a hook filed he'd test it by hanging it on his nose. He'd tip his head back, just a little, and just rest the point of the hook on his nose, and if it slid off he'd sharpen it some

"Singular way of testing fishhooks," said one of the party.
"It was," said the skipper, "but he always caught fish."—Boston Herald.
